💡 THE THESIS — READ THIS TWICE

This one is unusual: the cheapest quote is also the best one. Hollard is R2,265 a month below CIB and it is the only market that holds the buildings at R38.88m with agreed value on both collectors. So you are not arguing anyone out of anything.

Your value here is three things nobody else has spotted: Santam is R12.5m short on the houses, the Hollard quote has the Porsche R1m under-insured, and the client is walking around with a R200,000 excess on that Porsche without, in our experience, having been told.

RUN THE MEETING IN THIS ORDER

- 1 Open with the excess, not the price. "What's your excess on the Porsche?" Almost nobody knows. It is R200,000. That question earns you the rest of the meeting.
- 2 Then Santam, and take it off the table yourself. R12.5m short on the buildings, both collectors on retail, the Dodge logged as a 1996 Base Coupe. You are removing an option before he asks — that is what a broker is for.
- 3 Then Hollard, with its own flaw named. Cheapest, correct buildings, agreed value, R30m liability — and the Porsche is R1m light on the quote. Say that yourself before he finds it.
- 4 Then the valuables. Nobody has scheduled his jewellery and watches. Ask what they're worth.
- 5 Close on the trackers. 14 days, condition of cover, and the M5 already has a Cartrack CT1. Easy yes.

THE QUESTION THAT OPENS THE FILE

"What's your excess on the Porsche?"

R200,000. On a car he drives 3,500km a year and would least like to scratch. Whatever he answers, the real number will surprise him — and every other thing you say lands differently after it.

🧠 KNOW THE ROOM

This is a private client of a National Sales Manager — the relationship matters more than the R27k. Do not oversell. The strongest thing you can do is take Santam off the table yourself and name the flaw in the quote you are recommending. Both cost you nothing and both are things a price-led broker would never do.

THE SECOND POLICY

Properties, via TRQ / Tranquille: R11,763.02 → R11,564.35 = −R198.67/mo.

 But public liability R50m occurrence → R20m claims-made — the limit cut 60% AND the basis changed. For R199 a month, no. Price R50m and get the retro date in writing.

Both policies together: R32,642.04 → R30,178.06 = −R29,567.76/yr.

THE CLAIMS FILE, FOR THE ROA

2021 geyser R10,400; 2021 lightning R107,693. Nothing since — a clean record, and it is why the market priced well.

Replacing CIB means every reduction must be disclosed in writing before he decides. The proposal does that in full. Don't hand him a verbal version.

Three fixes and a tracker deadline

FIX 1 – THE PORSCHE IS R1,000,000 LIGHT ON THE HOLLARD QUOTE

Insured today at R5,000,000 = R4,000,000 car + R1,000,000 Weisig Package. The Hollard quote shows R4,000,000. If this goes unfixed and the car is written off, the client is R1m out of pocket and it is our quote that did it. This correction is worth more than the entire annual saving. Do it first, get it in writing.

FIX 2 – "UNSPECIFIED"

The Dodge's basic excess reads Unspecified on the Hollard schedule. A blank excess is not a low excess — it is an argument at claims stage. Get a rand figure on the schedule.

FIX 3 – 14 DAYS, OR NO THEFT COVER

Hollard requires early-warning trackers on ALL vehicles within 14 days of inception. It is a condition of cover. Miss the window and theft and hijack fall away on a fleet that includes a R5m Porsche and a R2m Charger.

THE CARTRACK ANGLE, AND IT IS CLEAN

The BMW M5 already carries a Cartrack CT1 — you are the incumbent on this household, not a cold call. The 2023 D350 has a competitor Tracker unit. That leaves three units to fit and one to convert, it is a condition of the policy rather than an upsell, and it has a fourteen-day deadline attached. This is the easiest telematics conversation in the book — don't turn it into a pitch, just book the fitment.

IN THE ROOM

"Two things before we talk money. Your excess on the Porsche is two hundred thousand rand — did you know that? And the quote I'm recommending has the car at four million when you insure it for five. I found that, and I'm fixing it before you sign anything."

The Naked Truth

Six things before you walk in. Number one is the one that could cost us the relationship rather than the deal.

1 ► If the Porsche isn't corrected, this is our mistake, not Hollard's.

We recommended the quote, R4m against R5m insured. A write-off leaves him a million short and it will be our advice that put him there. This is the one item that must not slip.

DO Get Hollard to confirm R5,000,000 including the Weisig Package in writing before anything is signed.

2 ► The excess is a genuine argument for Santam and you must not hide it.

R200,000 today, R150,000 at Hollard, R5,500 at Santam. If he later discovers you buried that to win the Hollard case, you lose him. It is R194,500 on a single claim.

SAY "Santam is much better on excess. That's why I'm asking them to re-quote properly rather than throwing it out."

3 ► The Santam quote may not be Santam's fault.

R20m on the main house and a "1996 Base Coupe" look like a quote built off incomplete information. Don't sneer at it in the room — it makes the market look sloppy and makes him wonder who we sent the information to.

DO Raise it with Santam in writing. In the room, just say it needs rebuilding on the right figures.

4 ► Nobody has ever scheduled his valuables.

CIB gives R300k out-of-home with locked-safe warranties — which is where these claims get declined. Hollard 20% of contents. Santam: All Risks not taken. On this household that is the most likely uninsured loss.

ASK "What are the watches and the jewellery worth? I'd like them itemised rather than sitting under a percentage."

5 ► The properties saving is R199 a month and it costs R30m of liability.

R50m occurrence to R20m claims-made. Two reductions in one line for less than two hundred rand. If he only reads the premium column he'll say yes to it.

SAY "I'm not recommending this half yet. The saving is small and the liability change is not."

6 ► He is a colleague's client and a National Sales Manager's file.

The R27k matters less than being the person who reads the schedule properly. Over-selling here costs more than under-selling.

DO Lead with what's wrong, including what's wrong with your own recommendation. Let the price be the last thing you mention.

"Before the numbers — do you know what your excess is on the Porsche? ... It's two hundred thousand rand. That's the first slice of any claim, and it's the kind of thing I'd rather you heard from me."

THE OBJECTIONS YOU'LL HIT — AND THE WORDS THAT ANSWER THEM

💬 "Santam's cheaper than CIB too. Why not that?"

- ✓ Because it insures your main house for twenty million and it's worth thirty-three-and-a-half. If it burns down you carry about ten million of it yourself. It also has your Dodge on the schedule as a 1996 Base Coupe. I've asked them to rebuild it properly — I'm not throwing it out, because their excess is genuinely better. I'm just not letting you sign it as it stands.

💬 "You're recommending Hollard but you say it's wrong too?"

- ✓ One thing on it is wrong and I found it: your Porsche is on there at four million and you insure it for five, because the Weisig package isn't included. I'm having that corrected before you sign. I'd rather tell you that than have you find it after a claim.

💬 "CIB have looked after us for years."

- ✓ They have, and there's nothing dishonest in that policy. But nobody has ever itemised your watches and jewellery — you've got three hundred thousand away from home with a locked-safe warranty on it, and that's the clause these claims get declined on. And your Porsche excess is two hundred thousand. Those two things have been sitting there a long time.

💬 "Is it worth the admin for twenty-seven thousand a year?"

- ✓ On its own, maybe not. But you're also getting thirty million of personal liability you don't have today, a fifty-thousand lower excess on the Porsche, and the valuables sorted out. The twenty-seven thousand is the least interesting part of it.

"Three things from you: what the watches and jewellery are worth, confirmation the Porsche still does three and a half thousand kilometres a year, and a date I can get the trackers fitted. I'll come back with Hollard corrected and Santam rebuilt, and then you choose between a lower excess and a bigger sum insured with the real numbers in front of you."

🎯 THE MOVE THAT MAKES YOU HIS BROKER

Take Santam off the table yourself, and name the flaw in the quote you're recommending before he finds it. Every broker who has sat in that chair has led with a cheaper number. Be the one who leads with what's wrong — including what's wrong with your own advice. On a private client of this size that is the entire relationship.
