The Deal You Win by Not Taking It

R8,420 a month is on the table and you are going to leave it there — and that is how you take this account off Profile Risk.

The game plan

💡 THE THESIS — READ THIS TWICE

You are not going to move this client this month, and you should not try. The quote is 7.2% cheaper and guts the third party cover on ten fuel-tanker horses. What you are going to do is walk in with work nobody has done for them before, tell them plainly not to take the cheaper option, and show them a hole in the policy they already have. That is how you become their broker. Profile Risk has had this account for years and has left environmental liability off a diesel fleet.

HOW TO RUN THE MEETING

1 Lead with the saving, honestly. "There's R8,420 a month on the table." Never let them hear it from someone else first — you found it, you say it.

2 Then take it off the table yourself. R10m to R2.5m on the horses. This is the moment they realise you are reading the policy and not the price.

3 The cargo excess. R20,000 becomes R300,000 on a hijacked load. Nobody has ever shown them that line.

4 Close on pollution — the gap that is on their CURRENT policy. That is the thing they take away and worry about, and it is the reason they call you next time.

"So do we save money or not?"

MATCHED 27 / 27

Same vehicles both sides by registration. Investec and Redtree Capital interests noted; Serin SA noted on trailers.

THE LEVER

Two trailers hijacked with their loads in two years — R6,500,000.

That is the loss this business has, and it is exactly the excess Petrosure has just said it cannot reduce. Everything else in this file is secondary to that sentence.

ALREADY CARTRACK

16 of 27

13 Tag Range with recovery, 2 Telematics Range, 1 Fleet Management — recorded on Santam's own schedule. Tracker Network on one, Capital Air on the Mercedes. Roughly eight units carry nothing.

WHY THE UNITS ARE NOT A SALE HERE

Petrosure requires a tracking device on every vehicle over R250,000 — 24 of the 27 — plus a pre-inspection of every vehicle. If this deal ever binds, the units are a condition of cover. And after two hijackings, video telematics and driver monitoring on the ten horses is the easiest conversation you will have all year.

Santam R10m per event and unlimited in the period, claims-made, retro 20 Aug 2021, products R2m (excluding petroleum products retail), legal defence R50k, wrongful arrest R50k.
 Petrosure R10m general, products R2m, defective workmanship R2m, legal defence R250k and wrongful arrest R100k — both better — and both blanks are now closed in writing: retro date held at 20 Aug 2021, R10m per event with no aggregate. This section is no longer an objection.

⚠ THE QUOTE IS NOT FIRM

Still "Loss History: Tba" and "Security details: Tba" on the 17 Aug revision, and Lezanne wrote it plainly: "the quote is subject to claims as we only have a schedule and no claims." Against R6,500,000 of hijack losses in two years this price will not survive underwriting. Do not give the client a number that is going to move.

The two cuts that kill the deal

CUT ONE • THIRD PARTY LIABILITY, RATED FLAT INSTEAD OF BY CLASS

CLASS	UNITS	SANTAM	PETROSURE	WHY IT MATTERS
Truck-tractors	10	R10,000,000	R2,500,000	Their ceiling is R5m and they cannot exceed it. Best case still –50% .
Tankers & heavy trailers	13	R5,000,000	R2,500,000	This class closes at their R5m — ask for it, and priced.
Light vehicles	4	R2,500,000	R2,500,000	Unchanged — the only class that matches.

CUT TWO • THE CARGO EXCESS, ON AN IDENTICAL R1M LOAD LIMIT

TOTAL LOSS OF A R1M DIESEL LOAD		SANTAM	PETROSURE	Δ	WHY
Accident damage		R20,000	R100,000	+R80,000	10% of claim, no reducer.
Theft or hijack		R20,000	R300,000	+R280,000	10% plus a further 20%.
Motor — rollover (single vehicle)	10% min R30k	20% of claim		2×	Petrosure adds 10% for single-vehicle. That is how a tanker is lost.
Motor — theft/hijack	15% min R7,500		20%	+5%	On the R2.4m T&TT trailer: R480k vs R360k — the unit they lost. Twice.
Motor — small accident damage	min R30,000	min R5,000		–R25,000	The one place Petrosure is genuinely better. Say so.

THE NUMBER THAT ENDS THE ARGUMENT

A hijacked diesel load: R20,000 today, R300,000 on the quote — and we asked for a reducer and were told they cannot offer one. That single line is worth more than thirty-three months of the entire saving, on a client hijacked twice in two years. Put it on the table and stop talking.

💬 IN THE ROOM

"I found you eight and a half thousand a month. I'm also telling you not to take it. You've had two trailers hijacked in two years — on this quote that excess goes from twenty thousand to three hundred thousand, and I asked them to fix it and they can't."

Then slide the table across and be quiet.

🕒 30-SEC VERSION

Same fleet, same load limit, R8,420 cheaper. Fifteen questions asked: five came back right, four still open, six refused. The two refusals are the hijack excess and third party on your horses — the two things your record says matter most. That's why we hold.

The Naked Truth

You are walking in to argue against a saving — for the second time, after the underwriter answered every question you put. A sharp client will test that. Here is where you are weak.

1 ► You are telling a business to spend R101,037 a year more — twice now.

Round one you said "let me go back to them". They came back and fixed five of the fifteen. Hold again without naming exactly which two answers stopped you and it reads as stalling.

SAY "They answered everything. Two of the answers were no, and they're the two your own claims record says matter. Here they are."

2 ► Petrosure is genuinely better in three places.

Small accident excess min R5,000 against Santam's R30,000. Statutory legal defence R250k against R50k. Wrongful arrest R100k against R50k. If you pretend the quote is all bad, the client stops believing the rest.

SAY "There are three things it does better, and I'll ask for those to be kept in the re-quote."

3 ► The pollution gap is on the policy YOU are recommending they keep.

"Environmental impairment liability — not included" is on the Santam schedule, all 27 vehicles. If you present this as a Petrosure failing you will be corrected, and it will cost you the room.

SAY "This one isn't about the quote. It's missing on what you have now, and I want to fix it whichever way you go."

4 ► The quote is a filling-station template.

Chilled stock, petrol pumps, underground tanks, till limits, petrol attendants, car wash, motor traders. They have no forecourt. Useful to you — but do not sneer at it in front of the client; it makes the underwriter look sloppy and the client wonder about your market.

DO Raise it with Petrosure in writing. In the room, just say the schedule needs to describe a transport contractor.

5 ► You know the claims record now — and you have not filed it.

R6,500,000, two trailers hijacked with their loads. You told FSP you would only release the full record once the client is ready to move. Understandable — but the quote still reads "Loss History: Tba" and is expressly subject to a satisfactory claims history. That price is going to move.

DO File the record now. A price that changes after you present it costs you the client, not just the deal.

THE OBJECTIONS YOU'LL HIT — AND THE WORDS THAT ANSWER THEM

💬 "Eight thousand a month is eight thousand a month."

- ✓ It is. It's also six percent. What you'd hand over for it is half the third party cover on every horse in the yard — and that's their ceiling, not their opening offer — plus a hijack excess that goes from twenty thousand to three hundred thousand. You've had two hijacks in two years. One more costs you thirty-three months of that saving.

💬 "Profile Risk have looked after us for years."

- ✓ I'm sure they have. I'd just ask you to look at one line on your own schedule — environmental impairment liability, not included, on all twenty-seven vehicles. You move diesel. That's the cover that answers when a tanker goes over and it reaches a river.

💬 "So you're telling me to do nothing?"

- ✓ No — I've already had five things fixed on that quote, including a vehicle that was three hundred thousand under-insured. I'm placing your pollution cover through a specialist market this week and I want credit shortfall on the financed units. What I'm not going to do is move you onto a thinner hijack excess to win your business.

💬 "What if Petrosure won't budge?"

- ✓ On third party they reach five million and no further — a hard ceiling, in writing. On the hijack excess they have already said no. So if neither moves you stay at Santam, and I take the whole account to the market properly before your next anniversary with your claims record in hand instead of "TBA".

"Two things left: third party lifted to their maximum and priced, and one last go at the hijack excess. If both land you save a hundred and one thousand a year on cover I can defend. If they don't, you've lost nothing — and you've got a pollution quote and a corrected sum insured you didn't have a week ago."

🔧 THE REFRAME THAT WINS THE ROOM

Every broker who has ever walked in here has led with a cheaper number. You are the first one to walk in and take one away. Do it early, do it plainly, and do not apologise for it — that single move is worth more than the 7.2%, because it is the only evidence they will ever get that you read the policy rather than the price.
